Thessaloniki International Media Summer Academy

July 5 -12, 2019 I Thessaloniki, Greece

Applications are now OPEN!

(deadline: May 10, 2019)

This year, the topics include:

The International Media Summer Academy will address and focus on issues that are timely and critically important:

➢ New Trends in Media

➢ Developing methods of news verification against disinformation

➢ Mobile Journalism

➢ Media Literacy

Who can apply?

➢ Bachelor/ Master Students of Journalism, political science, International relations, etc.

➢ PhD Students of Journalism, Political Science, International relations etc.

➢ Professionals from media and other related organisations who need a deeper understanding on the issues to be addressed.

Why choose us?

Join us in a memorable summer experience, through an intensive multi-disciplinary training course that aims to provide in-depth knowledge and robust skills on important topics and evolutions in media and communication.

✓ Acquire better understanding of the latest academic research, policy, market and professional trends in the focused area
✓ Develop an international network of colleagues, sharing their experiences, ideas and points of views.
✓ Learn from eminent international scholars, who will be invited to share their expertise in the form of lectures, collaborative study designs, digital content development, and new models.
✓ Gain valuable skills through workshops, develop case studies, and extend your methodological knowledge through hands on-practices.
✓ The course will be run with a mix-method teaching style and includes lectures, discussion, small group work, policy lab and hands-on practicum.
✓

"Fairytale-in-real. I could not imagine one night, 15 years later, I'd touch the sea Argonauts crossed. Thanks to the #Thisam2018 team for expanding my knowledge of media trends, especially on Constructive Journalism, and for this superbly-organized School. Thanks to all participants for the mosaic of your countries details and sunbathing at breaks." , Yulia Rudakova